PREFACE.

In the year 1826, October 16th, the following gentlemen, viz. DAVID HOSACK, M. D. W. J. MACNEVEN, M. D. VALENTINE MOTT, M. D. JOHN W. Francis, M. D. JOHN D. GODMAN, M. D. and JOHN GRISCOM, LL. D. were appointed by the Trustees of Rutgers' (formerly Queens') College, New-Brunswick, New-Jersey, the Medical Faculty of that Institution, and were located in the City of New-York. A spacious and convenient building was erected by the Professors, and the first course of Lectures was given in 1826 and '27, attended by a numerous class, collected from all parts of the union. The first public commencement was held at New-Brunswick. Soon after the termination of this course, this connexion was dissolved, and a subsequent union was formed between these gentlemen and the Trustess of Geneva College, in the State of New-York, by which they were recognized as the Medical Faculty of that institution, and under this authority another course was given, commencing at the usual time in 1827. In the following year Dr. Godman, whose eloquent lectures and instructive demonstrations will ever be remembered by his pupils with gratitude and delight, was obliged, from declining health, to vacate his professorship. Immediate measures were taken to appoint a successor, which resulted in the choice of Dr. Bushe, who has proved himself eminently qualified, by his talents and learning, to sustain the reputation of the School. The institution has continued each succeeding year to afford instruction to numerous and attentive audiences, and to maintain the long-established and well-earned reputation of its Board of Professors.
